Salisbury

Caroline Frost launched Inspire Family Solicitors in Salisbury at the beginning of August. As the name suggests, Inspire Family Solicitors will be specialising solely in family law. "This is a complex area and you need the very best advice" says Caroline. "Concentrating on our core strengths can only enhance the quality of service to our clients and in this respect, we consider Inspire to be no different to any other specialist trade or profession."

Caroline has been practising in family law for over 10 years. The last 5 years have been spent as head of family in the Salisbury firm, Whitehead Vizard, Salisbury. Caroline is a great supporter of collaborative law, having been amongst the first group to qualify in the South Coast in 2005.

Miles & Partners

Team Miles & Partners also recently completed a bike ride (a total of 55 miles) in support of the National Autistic Society on a sunny July Sunday and have raised over £1400 to date. It was a well organised event and whilst reeling under pressure on an 18% gradient, it was a very inspiring day out, with spectacular views and interesting people all with their own reasons for supporting this charity.

In our "fun group" one of the cyclist called Neil aged around 20, is on the Autism spectrum and he cycled with his father under very strict supervision. It was challenging for both him and his family as he had no concept of danger and would often cycle on the wrong side of the road. He needed lots of hugs and support on the way and I think the realisation of how hard it is for families comes to light.

Family Law in Partnership

Bradley Williams

The partners of family Law in Partnership are pleased to announce that Bradley Williams has accepted an invitation to join the partnership effective 1st July 2009. "Bradley has made a significant contribution to the team and we are delighted that he has accepted our invitation" said David Allison.

International Family Law Group

On 1 September 2009, the entire family law team of Reynolds Porter Chamberlain LLP, led by Carolyn Usher, joined International Family Law Group (iFLG). Carolyn brings with her a team of specialist lawyers experienced in international work, both finance and children. Helen Blackburn and Lucy Greenwood join as partners along with paralegal, Stuart Clark, and their support team. Carolyn is one of the world's leading international children lawyers, having been practising in this area for over 30 years. Chambers UK describes her: "A star in her own right, the hugely respected Carolyn Usher is "right at the pinnacle" of child abduction work".

iFLG now consists of six partners and consultants with four assistant lawyers (including four mediators, three collaborative lawyers and an arbitrator), undertaking specialist and complex family law work for national and international families and children.

Also on 1 September 2009, iFLG and leading Australian family law firm, Watts McCray, of Sydney, Canberra and Parramatta announced their association.
